

You will see a series of computer-generated faces on the screen. Your task is to say whether there could be a human face that looks like it

Assume that all the photos of the faces were taken under the same lighting conditions and the same distance from the camera

Any distortions and changes in size are part of the face itself, and not due to image quality

Answer as quickly and accurately as possible